- Popular country pub in expanding Lincolnshire village
- Large trading area with two external drinking areas
- Fully equipped commercial kitchen including multiple storage/prep areas
- 3 ensuite letting bedrooms
- Large car park

The Castle is an early 19th century property, located on the main A52 road on the edge of the village of Freiston. There are two large external drinking areas and a smoking area. Internally the pub has a main dining area with 60 covers with a public bar and a separate private dining area with 6 covers. There is a fully equipped commercial kitchen with preparation and storage areas. The car park holds in excess of 30 cars, with a number of useful outbuildings also to the rear. There are also 3 good-sized ensuite letting bedroom on the second floor.

Details of facilities in the neighbourhood

The Castle Inn is situated only two miles from the RSPB (Royal Society for the Protection of Birds) site of Freiston and is an ideal base for exploring the county. This expanding village of over 1300 residents, is close to the famous birdwatchers' attraction, Freiston Shore. The pub is located on the main A52 route between Boston (2 miles) and the busy seaside town, Skegness (19 miles) and is a popular stop off point for tourists. The pub is located in an area of mixed residential properties, with several high quality housing developments currently in progress. There is a primary school in the next village (Butterwick) and regular buses to Boston where the nearest secondary school is located.
